The number of permanent Assistant Commissioners at present is 58. Their distribution between the several departments is as below:--

.2 The number of Civil Service officers of Assistant Commissioner's grade under General Administration, according to the scale laid down is 6, but it is provided that one of those places might be held by a non-civil Assistant Comptroller and in that case there would be an extra civil service Assistant Comptroller in the Comptroller's Office.

NOTE—Contn. Sheet

3 The cadre in the Accounts Department is fixed at 4, but as stated above this is to be increased by one in view of a non-civil service Assistant Comptroller being Asst. Secretary. The actual number, however, in this Department at present, is 6, so that one has to be regarded as coming from the reserve.

It will be seen that out of 45 Assistant Commissioners' charges, 40 are filled by permanent men and 5 by others and that out of the 8 reservists 3 are on leave and one is an extra officer under training in the Comptroller's Office. Nine officers are employed on other duties not included in the Civil Service cadre. This accounts for 53 permanent men. Of the remaining 5 officers 4 are employed on other duties included in the Civil Service cadre, viz

1 against Chief Secretary's appointment
1 do. Asst. Private Secretary to H.H. the Maharaja.
1 do. Deputy Comr. of Income-tax,
1 do. Auditor, Mysore Railways, and one is in place of a Deputy Commissioner, on other duty as Municipal Commissioner, Bangalore. (This appointment really admits of only a provisionally permanent arrangement, but as Mr. Krishnaswami Rao is not likely to revert to the general Civil Service cadre, an extra appointment of Assistant Commissioner, permanent may be allowed). Altogether, then the total number ~~xx~~ admissible of Assistant Commissioners is 58 and this is also the actual number inclusive of 9 officers of Assistant Commissioners' grade on temporary and other duties not included in the Civil Service cadre. These admit of 1 acting, 2 sub pro tem and 6 provisionally permanent appointments ~~of Assistant Commissioners.~~ There are now 7 provisionally permanent Asst. Comrs. 2 sub pro tem Asst. Commrs., and 15 acting men and one who has been given the rank and status of an Asst. Commr. The excess of one under the provisionally permanent men is however admissible since one of these is employed as Secretary, Stores Purchase Committee and consequently against him another provisionally permanent appointment can be made; another of the provisionally permanent men is employed as Chief Officer of the Mysore City Municipality and this admits of another s.p.t. appointment against which however there is only an acting man. Of the 16 acting men (inclusive of one given the rank and status of an Asst. Commr.) two are thus accounted for, one is acting in a temporary appointment (Special Land Acquisition Officer) and the rest (13) are acting against 9 non-civil service appointments in the Revenue Department and 4 (exclusive of 2 s.p.t) in the Police Department.

There would be still 3 more places which might be filled ~~up~~ by the confirmation of 3 of the acting Asst. Commrs., the selection partly depending on the allocation of the officers between the several departments.

8 It will be observed that some comparatively young men of ability who were specially selected to act as Asst. Commrs. (e.g. Messrs. M.S.Ramachandra Rao, R.S.Narasimhiengar, Aziz Khan and Muddukrishnappa) will have no place in the Civil Service and under the recent rules they will be ineligible for higher appointments reserved to the Civil Service. If this is to be provided against, the only course is to transfer some of the comparatively old men among the permanent Asst. Commrs. who have no chance of rising to higher appointments to the non-civil service cadre.

(9) I have found it difficult to understand this case. I think two questions are discussed in the note: (1) a comparison of the number of officers who have already been confirmed as Assistant Commissioners with the number of Assistant Commissioners according to the new cadre sanctioned in the order dated 22nd September 1924; and, (2) the number of vacancies in the cadre of Non-Civil Service charges sanctioned in the same order and the filling up of such vacancies. I think it will conduce to a clearer comprehension of the case if these two questions are separately considered.

The 2 questions cannot be separated, as the Pr. men will have to be confirmed either in N.C.S., or the n.n.C.S. cadre.

(10) There is another cognate question which has also to be considered in this connection. I refer to the number of permanent Non-Civil Service ~~charges~~ officers in all departments under the old cadre compared with the number allowed for such charges under the new order. Only a part of this question relating to the Revenue and Police Departments is considered in this note.

This is because, as things stand, all the Pr. men as Mr Lim, have to be put in the n.n.C.S. cadre, have to go to the Revenue & Police Dept.

(11) As it is stated that there is an excess in the number of permanent Assistant Commissioners, compared with the strength allowed in the new cadre, it is necessary to see if there is any corresponding deficiency in the number of Non-Civil Service officers according to a similar comparison. I do not quite understand how there came to be any excess at all. If, however,

NOTE—Contn. Sheet

Yr. men of the n.n.C.S. class remain to be filled up

Because a no-1 Cl. Pr. has to be transferred to n.n.C.S. cadre however, there is no excess, taking both the Civil Service and the Non-Civil Service charges together, there should be a deficiency in the number of Non-Civil Service officers against the excess in the number of Civil Service officers.

Serial No.

2. If the excess in the number of permanent Assistant Commissioners is due to the fact that the number of officers on deputation and ~~of~~ those holding Non-Civil Service charges is more than the provision included for this purpose in the reserve of eight, it is necessary to ascertain what ~~are~~ is the nature of the charges held by the excess number of officers. If they hold permanent appointments and if there is no probability of their reversion to the list of Assistant Commissioners, the excess is nominal and no special solution for regularising it is necessary. If, however, the charges held by any of the officers are not permanent and so they cannot count service for pension in respect of such charges, their number constitutes the real excess; but even in their case, no question of excess salaries arises as tney need only be nominally shown in the list of Assistant Commissioners while drawing pay as holders of charges elsewhere. The only extra expenditure this class of excess number of officers creates is in respect of their pension charges. As these officers are permanent Assistant Commissioners, they will have to this is not the reason explained above by

be permitted to count service for pension even when holding temporary non-pensionable appointments elsewhere, although there are no permanent appointments for them in the new cadre of Assistant Commissioners.

13. I do not quite follow how it has been proposed to count the excess in the number of permanent Assistant Commissioners against some of the sixteen higher appointments included in the total cadre of Civil Service.

14. As for provisionally permanent men, I think if there are no places for them either in the Civil Service or Non-Civil Service ~~nor~~ Cadre, they will have to be reverted.

NOTE—Contn. Sheet

Serial No.

With reference to the Financial Secretary's note of the 4th instant, I am sorry if my note dated the 25th November 1924 did not make the position sufficiently clear to him. In para 4 of the G.O. of the 22nd October 1924 it has been stated that the number of Assistant Commissioners in the Civil Service according to the orders till then existing was 70. By the new order the number has been reduced to 53 the other appointments having been transferred to the non-Civil Service cadre. Against 70 appointments according to the old cadre we have now 58 permanent Assistant Commissioners, 7 provisionally permanent Assistant Commissioners, 2 sub pro tem Assistant Commissioners, 15 acting men and one given the rank and status of an Assistant Commissioner, the excess in the total of the latter over the 70 sanctioned posts being due to a number of officers of Assistant Commissioner's grade acting in higher appointments or on deputation. The excess in the number of permanent Assistant Commissioners (58) over the number admissible according to the new orders (53) is due to the transfer of a number of posts held by Assistant Commissioner s to the non-Civil Service cadre.

As regards the question how it is proposed to account the excess in the number of permanent Assistant Commissioners against some of the 16 higher appointments included in the outside cadre of the Civil Service referred to in the penultimate para of the Financial Secretary's note the explanation is as follows:-

The 16 higher appointments open to the Civil Service include 1 Chief Secretary and 8 Deputy Com-

Serial No.

Commissioners. As the Chief Secretary's name appears also in the list of permanent Deputy Commissioners, provisionally permanent arrangements are made among the Deputy Commissioners resulting in the appointment of an Assistant Commissioner as provisionally permanent Deputy Commissioner. Against the two permanent appointments of Chief Secretary and Deputy Commissioner, there is thus only one permanent officer in the higher Civil Service cadre and therefore it appears possible to add one to the number of permanent Assistant Commissioners against the Chief Secretary's appointment. Similarly in regard to the Assistant Private Secretary to His Highness. This is one of the 16 higher appointments open to the Civil Service and is held by an officer already included in the Deputy Commissioner's cadre. Similar remarks apply to the appointments of Deputy Commissioner of Incometax and Auditor, Mysore Railways, which are permanent appointments in the higher Civil Service cadre, but are held by Assistant Commissioners, thereby leaving two places of Assistant Commissioners vacant.

Secretary
Revenue Secretary.

I think the course he has taken would be as suggested in para 22 of my Note of 4.12.24. As regards vacancies caused by the transfer of officers & work as Chief Secy &c I think only provisionally permanent arrangements are desirable. Mch 13/12/24

OPINION OF THE COUNCIL.

The excess of five in the number of permanent Assistant Commissioners and the following provisionally permanent Assistant Commissioners who may be confirmed as such may be treated as Supernumeraries in the Civil Service cadre, an equal number of places in the non-Civil Service cadre being kept vacant:-

1. Mr. C. Gopalachar,

3. Mr. T. Hanumantha Rao,
4. Mr. R.A.Narasimhiengar
5. Mr. C. Lakshmana Rao,

As these supernumeraries are absorbed their places should be released for restoring to the non-Civil Service cadre the sanctioned strength.

Submitted to His Highness

These papers relate to the allocation of officers now included in the list of Assistant Commissioners in the Civil Service cadre under the recent revised rules of the 22nd September 1924. According to these rules, a number of posts hitherto held by the Assistant Commissioners belonging to the Civil Service has been transferred to the non-Civil Service cadre with the result that as against the reduced number of 53 posts now available to Assistant Commissioners, the actual number of permanent Assistant Commissioners at present is 58. Of these, four are on other -- duties included in the Civil Service Cadre and 10 are on other duties not included in the Civil Service cadre. There are also a number of officers styled "Assistant Commissioners provisionally permanent". These are earning increments in the grade of Assistant Commissioners, but have been awaiting confirmation on - the occurrence of vacancies. With the transfer of a number of posts of Assistant Commissioners to the non-Civil Service cadre and the appointment of six probationary Assistant Commissioners, the chances of confirmation of these provisionally permanent officers in the usual course have been considerably deferred.

The question of the allocation of the Assistant Commissioners was considered in Council on the 8th instant when it was resolved as follows:--

Office Note

"The excess of five in the number of permanent Assistant Commissioners and the following provisionally permanent Assistant Commissioners who may be confirmed as such may be treated as Supernumeraries in the Civil Service cadre, an equal number of places in the non-Civil Service cadre being kept vacant:--

1. Mr. C. Gopalachar.
2. Mr. M.S. Ramachandra Rao.
3. Mr. T. Hanumantha Rao.
4. Mr. R.A. Narasimhiengar.
5. Mr. C. Lakshmana Rao.
6. Mr. Abdul Aziz Khan.

As these supernumeraries are absorbed, their places should be released for restoring to the non-Civil Service cadre the - sanctioned strength".

(18

Pages 5 of Office Notes

A suggestion has been made in the notes of the file that some of the officers in the Civil Service cadre -- particularly those who cannot expect to rise to higher appointments -- may be transferred to the non-Civil Service posts; but I consider that this would not be equitable as an officer who has already been appointed in the Civil Service, whatever his prospects may be, would prefer even on sentimental grounds to be retained in the Civil Service cadre. The only possible solution is that indicated in the above resolution, viz., to treat the present excess in the permanent number as well as the provisionally permanent Assistant Commissioners (who are considered eligible for confirmation and are accordingly proposed to be confirmed) as supernumeraries during the transition period against vacancies in the non-Civil Service cadre. As these supernumeraries get absorbed, the places kept vacant in the non-Civil Service cadre would be filled up by subordinate ranks of the respective Departments.

The recommendation contained in the resolution is in accordance with the proposal of the Financial Secretary who was present at the discussion and has agreed to the recommendations made above.

The resolution of the Council may be graciously approved.
